WILL TAKE ALL THE PROFIT OUT.

A WAY TO STOP MOONSHINING.

JUDGE BOYD WILL TRY TO "CIRCUMVENT" THE ENEMY.

He Remarked That If Illicit Business Couldn't Be Stopped the Profit Could Be Taken Out of It—and He Proceeded to Take Some.

This afternoon, after having spent the day in trying petty illicit distilling cases, and fining one man $500, Judge Boyd remarked:

"I will try to divest them of their capital so that they can't go into business next fall and winter. If I can't stop this illicit business I can take the profit out of the business,and when they can make no profit it will stop."

It has often been remarked that a Federal Court Judge could go a long way toward breaking up moonshining if he were of a mind to do so. From Judge Boyd's remarks it appears that he is of a mind to do so. He had just sentenced a man who pleaded guilty of having worked in a moonshine still to two months' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $100.

The case in which J. G. and O. W. Kerner, of Forsyth, submitted o a charge of failing to cancel stamps, was heard late yesterday afternoon. The Judge fined each one of them $1,000, and six months each in prison, also to pay the cost of the case to an extent not to exceed $1,000. The Judge afterwards remitted the sentence to imprisonment in case the cost of the case was paid.

Carolina and Georgia Debates

The first of the second series of three debates between the Universities of North Carolina and Georgia occurs tonight in Athens, Ga. The trust question has been selected as the theme for discussion. North Carolina will be represented by Messrs. D. L. Stern and J. W. Swift. These two gentlemen passed though the city last night on their way to Athens from Cahpel Hill.

In the first series of the debates between the two states North Carolina won two of the three, and it is thought the chances are in favor of her winning this one.

The debaters are chosen from the University by competitive debates.

Nearly $600,000 of Insurance.

Mr. J. W. Wharton, Secretary and Treasurer of the Guilford branch of the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company, was busily working on the books of his company this morning when spoken to by a reporter. He says that the Farmers' Mutual carries $560,000 insurance in the county. much more than any other company carries in this county. The company has been operating seven years and has paid about $6,000 losses. All losses have been paid promptly. There are about 700 policy holders, and the insurance, which is against fire, wind, and lightning, is given at actual cost.

Will Do the Work.

Messrs. J. N. Longest and C. D. Benbow and G. H. Royster went to Sanford this afternoon to assist in the formation of a lodge of Knights of Pythias tonight. The degree will be conferred by a degree team from Southern Pines. This team is said to be in fine trim and the work will be fine.

To Address Medical Students.

Dr. Charles D. McIver, president of the State Normal and Industrial College, has been invited to deliver the Commencement Address before the graduating class of the University College of Medicine at Richmond on May 2.

JONES ON THE STAND.

Patrick's Lawyer Pulls Him Over the Coals.

New York, April 4.—The proceedings against Albert T. Patrick, the lawyer who is accused of causing the death of William Marsh Rice to obtain his property, were resumed today.

Before the proceedings began the representatives of the prosecution and defense discussed a proposition to adjourn today until next Tuesday morning.

Assistant District Attorney Osborne said: "Don't want an adjournment unless the defense will waive further examination."

"Well," Justice Jerome, "as yet nothing has been shown to prove that Patrick is really guilty of murder except the uncorroborated testimony of an acknowledged accomplice. There must be corroboration of Jones' statements in order to hold Patrick on a murder charge, and I will not accept a waiver at the present time from either side."

The cross-examination of Charles F. Jones was then taken up. Jones said that on the afternoon that he attempted to commit suicide he wrote some letters. When he got better he destroyed them all. He did not think they had been out of his possession from the time they were written until he destroyed them. Jones said, however, that he left the letters in his cell when he was taken to the district attorney's office. One of the letters was offered by House, who was his counsel at that time. He did not write a statementwhile he was in Bellevue Hospital. While in the hospital he received visits from Captain Baker,, of Texas, one of the witness of the 1896 will. Latter on he was called upon by Mr. Battle, his counsel.

"What conversation took place between you and Mr. Battle?" asked Mr. Moore.

"After Captain Baker had introduced me to Mr. Battle he went away. Mr. Battle then said he understood from Captain Baker I wanted him to represent me. Mr. Battle said he was willing to be come my attorney and would do his best for me."

"Mr. Battle," the witness continued, "asked me where I hid the knife with which I cut myself and where I got it. I told hom."

"When did Captain Baker call again?"

"To the best of my recollection he returned the same evening, accompanied by Mr. Battle."

Mr. Moore tried to draw from the witness an admission that Captain Baker on his first visit to Jones in the hospital had suggested that the latter employ separate counsel.

"I do not think he did," witness answered.

"Mr. Moore objected to the qualification with which almost all the answers of the witness were prefaced.

"Give me a responsible answer. Did you ask Captain Baker in substance to get you another lawyer?" asked Mr. Moore.

"I asked him to send me some members of the weeks & Battle firm. Yes."

Witness said that Mr. Battle called on him at the hospital three times. On his second visit, witness said Mr. Battle was accompanied by his (witness) father, who lived near Houston, Texas.

Witness said he did not do any writing at the time, but had a conversation with his father about family affairs.

"I felt bad," said Jones, "and my father was very much distressed. I referred my father to Mr. Battle for anything regarding the Rice case."

"Did you expect him to tell your faer all in regard to the murder of your benefactor that you had told him?"

Jones said that he thought that was the understanding.

"Had you told Mr. Battle the same story about the murder as you told Mr. Osborne October 28? asked Mr. Moore.

"Yes, I had."

GIGANTIC RAIL-ROAD SCHEME.

ALL THE BIG ROADS TO COMBINE

COMPARED TO THIS COMBINATION THE STEEL TRUST WILL BE A BABY

The Evening Journal Says That All the Big Railroad Systems of the Country Will Be Combinned, But Each Road Will Preserve Its Own Identity.

By Wire to The Telegram.

New York, April 5.—The New York Evening Journal asserts that a plan is on foot to combine all the great railway systems of the United States under one management. Each road, it is asserted, is to preserve its own identity, but the new company will control the affairs of all.

If this plan is carried out the gigantic steel corporation recently formed would be a baby trust in comparison.

Grand Chief Arthur of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineerrs, President Sargent of the Locomotive Firemen's Association, and President Morrison of the Railway Firemen's Association are here conferring as to the possible effect of the proposed trust on the labor unions.

The Evening World says that the presence of the labor leaders is connected with a possible strike on the Jersey Central.

RELIGIOUS PROSECUTIONS.

Jews Being Killed in Constantinople and Quakers in Hungary.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Vienna, April 5.—The Nazarenes, a sect resembling the Quakers, were attacked in the meeting house at Gresswardein, Hungary, and ten killed and many wounded. The mob set fire to the meeting house and terrible scenes ensued.

MANY JEWS KILLED.

Constatinople, April 5.—Many Jews were killed and scores wounded in the religious riots in Teheran, the Persian capital. The Shah ordered the Moslem sheik, Ildrahim, who started the riot to be executed.

Kidnapped Boy Only Ran Away.

By Wire to The Telegram.

New York April 5.—Capt. Gannon, of the Highbridge police station, insists that Willie McCormick, alleged to have been kidnapped, ran away on his own account. Lawyer Wolfe saw the boy answering to McCormicks description in the company of four tramps, footing the distance from Troy to East Albany. The kidnapping letters are said to be the results of sensational newspaper machinations.

Resurrected by the Coroner.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Benwood, W. Va., April 5.—Joe Polich, a middle aged ex-slave came to life while the coronor's jury was holding an inquest over his supposed dead body.

Cinch on Persian Funds.

By Wire to The Telegram.

St. Petersburg, April 5.—A Russian Company has acquired a franchise collaring Persian custom receipts for seventy-five years.

There will be the regular Sabbath school next Sabbath at First Presbyterian church, but it will be short, in order to admit those who wish to attend the dedication of the M. E. church It being the first Sunday of our new year, we hope all will be present and prompt at 10 o'clock. No preaching in the morning but will be at night.

SECRETARY.

SUDDEN DEATH AT HIGH POINT.

E. KEEN, JR., A LUMBER DEALER OF VIRGINIA, THE DECEASED.

Was Getting Ready to Leave on the Noon Train When the Summons Came—A Man of High Standing.

Special to The Telegram.

High Point, April 5.—Mr. E. Keen, Jr., a well-to-do farmer and lumber manufacturer living ten miles from Mt. Airy, in Patrick county, Virginia, died suddenly here this afternoon at the Jarrell Hotel at fifteen minutes to one o'clock, of heart failure. He had had been complaining a few minutes and was getting ready to take the north bound train home, which was forty minutes late, when the summons came.

Mr. Keen was about sixty years of age. He arrived here Wednesday night in the interest of his lumber business and succeeded in selling a large amount to consumers here. The deceased was a man of family and the relatives have been notified by wire.

Mr. Arthur Harrison of this place is acquainted with the deceased and says he was a man of high standing and universally liked, and one of the most prosperous farmers along the Dan river. He has two sons serving on United States battleships in capacity of stewards, one on the New York and one on the Iowa. Undertaker Sechrest has charge of the body and will await information from the family of the deceased.

GUILFORD'S GOLD MINES.

Mr. C. S. Herzig, of Salisbury, an Englishman, who is in this section in the interest of a northern syndicate prospecting for gold, has fitted out a party to open up the gold mine near Pleasant Garden, known as the Woodburn mine. The water will be pumped out and the timbers straightened up and other work done, in order to see if the property is valuable enough to be mined.

It is not generally known, but within a radius of ten miles of the city there are about ten gold mines. All of them have been worked to a greater or less extent. In some of them shafts have been sunk to a depth of fifty or sixty feet, and in others shafts have been sunk to a greater depth and tunnels from these shafts run for a considerable distance under ground.

Last summer during the severe drougth, one of these mines, the Fisher Hill, located about seven miles southwest of the city, was pumped out and a little prospecting done, but nothing ever came of it. At that time notwithstanding the scarcity of water, two pumps were kept running night and day for over two months before the water was all out of the mine. The discharge from the two pumps amounted to several thousands of gallons of water each minute.

Since that time the buildings of the place have been worked on and put in good repair. It is said that options on several of the mines have been obtained by a syndicate of capitalists, and if either of them show signs of a sufficient yield to justify the outlay, they will be operated.

Nails!

The Odell Hardware Company will receivethis week twelve solid car loads of nails. Each car will hold three hundred kegs of nails and each keg keg contains a hundred pounds of nails. While of course the greater part of these nails will be shipped out of the city, a large demand for them exists in Greensboro. This is evidenced by the fact that one day recently a retail clerk of that store sold forty-three kegs of nails in one day.

SAYS WHEELER WAS MISTAKEN

NOT THE MEN WHO ROBBED HIM

NORRIS SAYS HE CAN SHOW THAT WHEELER WAS WRONG.

Thus at Least One Point Has Been Made in Favor of the Gold Brick Men—Mr. Norris Not Interested Further.

Mr. J. T. Norris, spoken of in yesterday's Telegram as a detective here from Ohio interested in the gold brick men, is still here. He visited the men in prison yesterday afternoon. Before going he made the statement that if either one of the men was a certain man he was not at all interested in him and would not worry the local officers in the discharge of their duty, that if it was another man he knew he would put up a $1,000 bond if it would get him out and he would go home with him, but if it was another man, he would do anything honorable to get his person for his clients, who had lost money.

After Mr. Norris visited the jail he told a Telegram reporter that he recognized the old miner perfectly, and knew his whole history from his boyhood, but was not further interested. Mr. Norris made a very interesting statement. He said that to his certain knowledge this man was not the one who sold old man Wheeler, of South Carolina, two gold bricks six years ago. He said that he could show positively that he was not the man Wheeler thought he was. He said that the old man Wheeler was simply confused and mistaken when he was down here.

Mr. Norris does not know Hawley and Daley. He thinks the latter is a mere "pick up," and dupe of the other two.

Invented a Pulley.

Mr. T. J. McAdoo has invented a pulley weherby he expects to be able string his telephone cables with greater ease than formerly. The pulleys are made to be attached to a wire already on the poles, and a small rope is then put though the pulleys. This rope is afterwards attached to the cable and a slight pull on the rope brings the cable quickly along. Mr. McAdoo expects to be able to put his cables up with much more speed and safety than before.

To Stop Here.

Dr. Charles D. McIver, of the State Normal College, has mtde arrangements to have the members of the Educational Conference, which meets in Winston on the 18th instant, mention of which has been made several times in The Telegram, to spend several hours in the city. While here they will visit the Normal College and the Agricultural and Mechanical College.

There will be with this Conference some of the most noted men in the United States.

To Be Married.

Invitations have been received in this city to the marriage of Mr. Jesse Gordon Powell to Miss Minnie Douthit in the Methodist church at Mocksville, Wednesday evening, at half past eight o'clock. Mr. Powell is an engineer of the A. & Y. Division of the Southern Railway and has many friends here.

The protracted services held this week at Grace M. P. church will close tonight. Much interest has been manifested during the services.

THE EASTER DIET IN ALL COUNTRIES

We speak of the egg as the popular article of Easter diet in all climes and countries, and simply take it for granted that it is the egg of some one of our common domestic fowls that is thus honored. The hen's egg most commonly, of course, and after that the duck, or goose or turkey egg proves the favorite. It will be something of a surprise to many to have their attention called to the fact that these are avery small proportion of the different kinds of eggs indulged in during the early spring, and especially at the Easter season, in many countries.

Turtle eggs are eaten by Europeans whenever they can get them. They are found generally in great numbers along the banks of the Amazon and the Orinco Rivers at high water, The turtles come up four times in the spring at an interval of two weeks to lay, depositing in the sand and carefully burying from 140 to 200 eggs each time, or about eight hundred in all. The expert native finds these eggs and besides living upon them (they will eat 30 for a meal and the Europeans a dozen) they make an oil of themthat has a high market value.

The annual harvest of turtles' eggs is so sure that the estimate it as of so much value per acre. Five thousand jars of oil are yearly made from these eggs, and it takes 5,000 eggs to produce a jar

In Africa the natives eat the eggs of the boa, as many as 50 being found in one snake after it was killed. In Africa and the Antilies the alligator egg is considered a delicacy.

In the East, Siam, Arabia and Egypt insect eggs are collected and eaten as a delicacy, and on many islands the sea birds' eggs are much sought after.

The spawn, roe or eggs of the fish form another wide field. Caviare is a food we all know; the black variety is made of sturgeon roe, one fish often yielding as much as 120 pounds. The roe of the shad is our special spring dish. Cod roe is much eaten, and the eggs taken from the lobster, crab and shrimp are a great delicacy.

The eggs of the ostrich and the emu are considered very good eating, and, in fact, there seems to be but few eggs produced in nature that are not palatable to some one.

Considering the wide range of birds, fish, reptiles and insects that lay eggs we find our selves decidedly restricted when we realize that many of us have never tasted of more than one or two kinds of roe and only one bird's egg--namely, that of a respectable hen. We are probably very well satisfied with this limited egg diet, however, for it is not exactly pleasant to contemplate the eating of some of the egg delacies, so-called, that are relished in other lands.

Charlotte Observer.

The notorious "Freddie" Gebhard, who belongs to the Metropolitan, Union, Knickerbocker, Coaching, Racquet, Tuxedo and New York Yacht Clubs, of New York City, who followed the notorious Mrs. Langtry about from place to place while she was starring the country some years back, has just arrived in Sioux Falls, S. D., with nine trunks and a valet, to "acquire a residence" there in orded that he may be divorced from his wife who was the beautiful Miss Louise Hollingsworth Morris, of Balitimore, and whose wedding presents from "Freddie" were a $50,000 diamond necklace and pendant and a $20,000 ruby. Mr. and Mrs. Gebhard have stayed married as long as seven years but have been quarreling for the last two. Thenews ofthe sporting gentleman's turning up in South Dakota calls attention to the sadly lax and loose divorce laws of this country and the alarming encroaches that are being made through them upon American home life.

Raleigh Times.

Judge Starbuck pronounced sentence upon Major W. H. Martin, and he must spend the next ten years, or so much of it as he may live, in the State penitentiary.

When court met this afternoon at 2:30 Judge Starbuck, on taking his seat said: "I shall not hold the case of Major Martin open for longer consideration, and will pronounce sentence now. Since there seems to be some doubt about this coming under the law regarding the embezzlement of State funds by an officer, I shall give him the benefit of that doubt because adequate punishment can be inflicted under the other section. The circumstances of the embezzlement call for severe sentence and I shall impose the full sentence of ten years."

The defendant was then ordered brought into court. After consultation with the solicitor Judge Starbuck found that he could send him to the penitentiary instead of the county work house. Major Martin was brought into court and sat quietly by his attorneys, Messrs. Argo and Ryan. He portrayed no emotion when Judge Starbuck sentenced him to the State prison for ten years. Since Major Martin is now past sixty years of age, this means a life sentence. He will probably be carried to the State prison tomorrow and begin his long sentence.

FUNSTON'S METHODS IN HISTORY.

The capture of Aguinaldo, the Filipino leader, and the only one of whom much in this country is known, is, both by reason of its importance and the manner of its accomplishment, of much more than passing interest. A few days ago we remarked about the fact that deception is a legitimate mode of warfare. In the New York Sun we find the following very interesting account of some of Funston's methods in history:

Gen. Funston's achievement in capturing Aguinaldo recalls earlier attempts made by officers of other arcies to make prisoners of leaders of hostile forces. The first attempt at seizing a general was never carried out; it involved too many persons, and the plotters engaged in it worked from the inside, not from without, as Funston did, and their plans were overheard. This was the attempt in June 1777, to seize Washington in New York; the plan was changed later to an attempt to poison him. This plan of the conspirators was overheard by a woman, who disclosed them to the American authorities,and as a result the men implicated were captured and punished, one of them, Private Thomas Hickey, of Washington's body guard, being hanged.

After Arnold's treason and his flight to the British, the Americans made an attempt to seize him. This undertaking was like Gen. Funston's exploit. Sergeant Champ, of Lee's Legion,was the principal actor in the scheme. His plan was known only to the chief in command; so when he deserted to the British his late comrades fired upon him, and he reached the enemy's lines under a shower of bullets, narrowly escaping with his life. That was an excellent introduction to the British and Champe was received with open arms. But he was unsuccessful; Arnold moved his headquarters the day on which Champe had arranged to capture him, and Champe had finally to desert from the English and return, again under fire, to our lines. When Washington wished soon after to promote him for his gallantry, he found that Champe had died of disease.

The capture of the British general, Prescott, in July, 1777, was perhaps the first successful attempt of the kind. General Prescott commanded the British forces in Newport, R. I., and went for the summer to a fine house some five miles out of the city. Col. William Barton, knowing this, decided to capture him if possible; and on July 10, 1777, with 41 comrades,rowed across from Warwick point on the west shore of Naragansett Bay, and reached the house undiscovered. The door of his house was burst in by a negro, who used his head as a battering ram; Prescott was asleep, and awoke to find himself a prisoner. He was not allowed to dress, but in his cloak, with a captor carrying his clothes, was forced to the boat, and carried within the American lines and then to Washington's headquarters in New Jersey. He was exchanged later. The successful capture of Gen. Stoughton by Mosby and his Rangers in March, 1863, was the result of a carefully made plan. Mosby, with 29 men, entered Fairfax court house, passing themselves off as belonging to the Fifth New York Cavalry, and while some of the band attempted to capture Col. Wyndham, the leader went to the house where the general was sound asleep. At the name of Mosby, Gen. Stoughton sat up in bed,wide awake in an instant. "Have you got him?" he asked. "He's got you," replied Mosby. The prisoner was taken to Gen. Fitzhugh Lee's headquarters,from the very midst of acamp in which lay several thousand troops. The attempt to capture Sitting Bull was not made by strategy or trick; our Indian scouts went openly to the old Chief's tent,and when they tried to arrest the famous Sioux were met with bullets, they returned the fire and killed him, losing some of their own number.

Funston's capture of Aguinaldo was marked by a well-advised plan, involving more danger than that of any other plot except Sergeant Champe's, and requiring longer time and more careful work, with the same exception.

It will be noticed that little is said of the method pursued in these various attempts. Some of them were "open and above board" no doubt, while it is certain that rank deception was used in some of them.

A COSTLY PURCHASE.

BY SHAWEN.

Writtten for The Telegram.

The recent and existing troubles of an American heiress who, several years ago, married a French Count. have been made to serve the love of scandal by newspapers of two continents. At last the prurient public appears to be satiated with the particular case, as it soon becomes in all such matters in these days when one social sensation treads upon another's heels, so fast they come.

There is a phase to these cases not salacious to consider, but instructive concerning the evils that they represent.

In the case mentioned not even the consideration that she is an American woman is sufficient to overcome the abeyance of our sympathies in her "misfortunes."

She cannot hold herself to be a dupe. for there is nothing in the Count's martial career inconsistent with his record prior to the marriage. It is not presumable that the lady and her family were ignorant of the Count's reputation when the engagement was contracted; nor could they rationally calculate that he would be other than an expensive luxury. Even we who can have no direct interest in the matter would reckon on the general and ture proposition that he must of necessity be a costly purchase, for the reason that those early and simple tastes that first satisfy a man of the world consume themselves by reckless indulgence. They leave in their wake satiety, always an expensive malady to treat; to treat, mind you, or, if you will, to indulge; for it is not subject to cure. Satiety is but the dyspepsia of the inclinations and must be constantly fed by indulgencies ever more and more costly. It lies across the Rubicon of moderateness and aspires after things superlative in degree.

People as high up in figures as this lady's family ought also to be well up in figures. And if the erred in so simple an equasion they are chargeable with the demerit.

It was a simple calculation that the Count, having exhausted the ordinary pleasures of life, and his exchequer as well, and being too clever to part with his birthright for a mess of pottage at home, when there was a land across the sea where it was marketable at fancy values, it was a simple calculation that he assumed the marriage not for the lady's benefit, but his own.

He was not quite a pauper; even without the inconveniences of marriage he could probably have eked out the term of his existence in ordinary luxury. But he was weary of ordinary luxury! This marriage held out the promise of extraordinary luxury. Otherwise, it is safe to presume that there would have been no marriage.

If then he has made good his intentions—those intentions furnished his motif in marriage—what warrant is there that he should be so berated? Why not direct our consideration to the more pertinent phase of the question—the abuse of the institutions of marriage in the procuration of a title?

How unworthy a view of titles it is to adjudge them as negotiable. An honor bought ceases to be an honor, the transfer mutilates it. Mutilated honor is like a wounded name—the hurt is mortal.

A title carries with it social prerogative, to be sure; butin genuine society of rank she who enters it through the right of purchase only should be prepared to pay deference herself and to receive only condescension in return. She is an intruder, and the women of that circle, however courteous may be their manner, will keep her advised of that fact.

At the out set, therefore, the women that marries for rank commits herself to an impossible destiny, and after a while there will be added to the sacrifice of her heart the ruins of social envy.

The disappointment that attends social failure would be bitter enough of itself, but with disappointment comes a realization of the real emptiness of the coveted life, even though it had been attained.

The quality of fortune is inadequate, even in the higher social walks, to establish one in the real honors of life. Riches are extraneous to the actual person, and can in no true sense hold rivalry with the qualities of mind and bod. Beauty of person, grace, charm of manner—these a woman can call parts of herself; and above those qualities, as parts of herself, there may be beauty of mind and heart and the charms of delicate and womanly sensibilities.

Titles are supposed to carry the intimation of excellence, of virtue of character. But where they are not derived from such considerations, but are procured as mediums of matching one's jewels with the jewels of others, of vieing as a new-comer with those of long standing in social functions, in the holding of notable receptions and the like conventionalities, together with all the stir and show of social pomp and prestige—where this striv-

JONES ON THE STAND.

"Then," said Mr. Moore, "on that evening you were quite determined to deceive your own father. You were willing that he should be told a lie?"

Witness did not reply.

Mr. Moore insisted that a direct answer be given, and Justice Jerome finally put the question to the witness himself.

"Were you willing to decieve your father?"

"I was on that occasion," witness replied.

"When you made your first statement to Mr. Osborne, did he not tell you that you lied?"

"To the best of my recollection he said that I had made a fictitious statement, and thought itcould not be corroborated."

"Did not Mr. Osborne say you would both be punished if you did not tell the truth?"

"I think not."

Mr. Moore next brought out the letters which were written by Jones before he tried to cut his throat and which were left in his cell when he was taken to Bellevue.

Witness said they were returned to him there by a man he did not know. He could not describe the man.

Jones said it was true that in the statement of his own case, which he had made to his counsel, he had told a falsehood in stating that Patrick had killed Rice.

"You deceived even your own lawyer?" asked Mr. Moore.

At this point Justice Jerome interfered.

"This witness is a weak, wicked and unfortunate man. He is a self-confessed murderer and deserves contempt; but I won't allow you to insult him."

Lawyer Moore said; "Here is a solemn statement about a cold-blooded murder. Mr client is directly concerned, and I am not asking too much in demanding that it shall on the record that it is a false hood."

Justice Jerome then allowed the question and Jones said he had deceived his counsel.

A statement made by Jones to his present counsel, Mr. Battle, was read. Melvin Dalberg, of Patrick's counsel, began the reading of the paper, but had some difficulty in deciphering it, and Patrick took up the reading and finished it. This is the first time that Patrick's voice has been heard in court. In the statement Jones alleged that Patrick killed Rice.

Kimball Instruments

Do you not want a Piano which is so famous in the pleasant home, in the social entertainments, at the political gatherings, and last, but not least, on all occasions in the famous churches and institutions throughout the land? Below is given a testimony of the Chairman of the Jury of Award at the World's Fair, in which is included, also, that of the manager of an institution whose renown is world-wide:

DEAR SIR:—Your esteemed favor received. Dr. Ziegfeld is at present taking a vacation abroad and I take the liberty of answering your communication. This institution is furnished throughout with Kimball Pianos, no other being used, and we can give this instrument our qualified endorsement.

Dr. Ziegfeld was Chairman of the Jury of Award at the World's Fair, and had an opportunity of examining every instrument exhibited. This, with his experience in the musical world for more than 35 years, led him to select the Kimball Piano for the college.

For school purposes and for concert use they give us perfect satisfaction. They are equally perfect in tone, action and durability; and to anyone contemplating the purchase of a Piano we highly recommend the Kimball.

Very respectfully yours,
CHICAGO MUSICAL COLLEGE.
[Signed] W. K. ZIEGFELD, Manager.

We are offering the instruments at prices and on terms to suit any and all: $20 cash and 4 per cent. a month buys any instrument we have in stock. Call and see us. If you can't come in the day come at night. Our doors are open until 10 p. m.

It is the deep-seated, obstinate cases of catarrh and rheumatism that B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) cures. It matters not what other treatments doctors, sprays, liniments, medicated air, blood purifiers, have failed to do, B. B. B. always promptly reaches the real cause and roots out and drives from the bones, joints, mucuous membrane, and entire system the specific poison in the blood that causes rheumatism and catarrh. B. B. B. is the only remedy strong enough to do this and cure ond so there can never be a return to the symptoms. Don't give up hope, but try B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) or 3 Bs.

For sale by druggists and Howard Gardner, in Greensboro, at $1 per large bottle, or 6 large bottles (full treatment) $5. To prove our faith in B. B. B. we will send a trial bottle free to sufferers, so they may test the remedy at our expense. Address Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga.

"Last winter I was confined to my bed with a very bad cold on the lungs. Nothing gave me relief. Finally my wife bought a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure that effected a speedy cure. I cannot speak too highly of that excellent remedy."—Mr. T. K. Houseman, Manatawney, Pa. Howard Gardner.

ing after idle precedence is the object sought in titles, people of worthy qualities will pay no homage to such intruders.

It is a strange and vicious craving in one lowly born and coming into riches to seek a social elevation whence to receive adulation, and to bestow flatteries quite as vacuous on those whose favor is desirable, as well as to snub those once one's equals, as evidence of one's advanced social status.

Unfortunately for American social conditions, the aristocracy of wealth in this country—a sort of mushroom growth—arrogates to itself such exclusiveness as titles represent abroad, without the merits of foreign rank, and such fantastic distinctions obtain among us as only shoddiness can devise.

In no country can there be a common social level for all the people. Equality doesn't exist in the human family, nor ever will. There are bound to be social grades, but the determining factor of those grades should be genuine personal worth, and not riches.
